CULT PERMANENT STRUCTURE.

A wealthy Japanese magnate has completed the building he had for the purposes of devotion and meditation in the country of his ancestors. The edifice, which has been called the "Temple of the Ancient Ones," is situated in the province of Chiba, in the district of Utsunomiya, and is the most magnificent example of Japanese architecture that has been erected in the country for many years.

The temple is a structure of wooden framework, covered with white paper, and adorned with richly colored wood trimmings. It is surrounded by a golden pagoda, and is surmounted by a large bell, which is rung at certain times of the day. The temple is approached by a flight of steps, which lead up to a small platform, and from which a magnificent view of the surrounding country can be enjoyed.

The temple is built on a hillside, and is surrounded by a beautiful garden, which is filled with flowers and shrubs of every kind. The garden is enclosed by a high wall, and is entered by a small gate, which is decorated with richly colored foliage.

The building itself is a large structure, and is divided into several distinct parts. The main portion of the temple is a large hall, which is adorned with pictures and sculptures of the most beautiful designs. There is also a smaller hall, which is used for the performance of religious ceremonies, and is decorated with pictures and sculptures of the most beautiful designs.

The temple is under the direction of a high priest, who is assisted by a number of religious officers, who are occupied with the performance of various religious ceremonies. The priests are dressed in richly colored robes, and are adorned with precious jewels, which are worn on their heads and shoulders.

The temple is a place of great sanctity, and is the resort of many people, who come to pay their respects to the holy place, and to seek the favor of the gods. The priests are kind and courteous, and are always ready to assist those who come to the temple in time of need.
